As a global leader in risk and capital management, our success is built on forward-looking, committed employees who are keenly focused on quality. Are you ready for the challenge?

Chief Medical Officer

Swiss Re is looking for a highly motivated insurance medicine professional with at least ten years' experience of working in an insurance or reinsurance environment. This person will be responsible for leading the Medical Services department in Europe; driving the team to ensure client-focused services are delivered consistently by the whole European team. Extensive client-insurer contact can be expected, with market visits, presentations, involvement in industry seminars, and product development or case discussions all being a standard part of the job.

This is an exciting opportunity for a highly experienced insurance medicine professional to help lead the profession and the industry in the years to come.

- A licensed medical doctor with broad clinical experience, preferably in internal medicine, cardiology or oncology
- At least 10 years experience in life and health insurance medicine is essential
- Strong English language presentation and communication skills are required, with other European languages being an advantage
- Extensive experience of insurance related research and publication
- Management experience is preferred
